

Who Governs NYC Schools?

For sources:

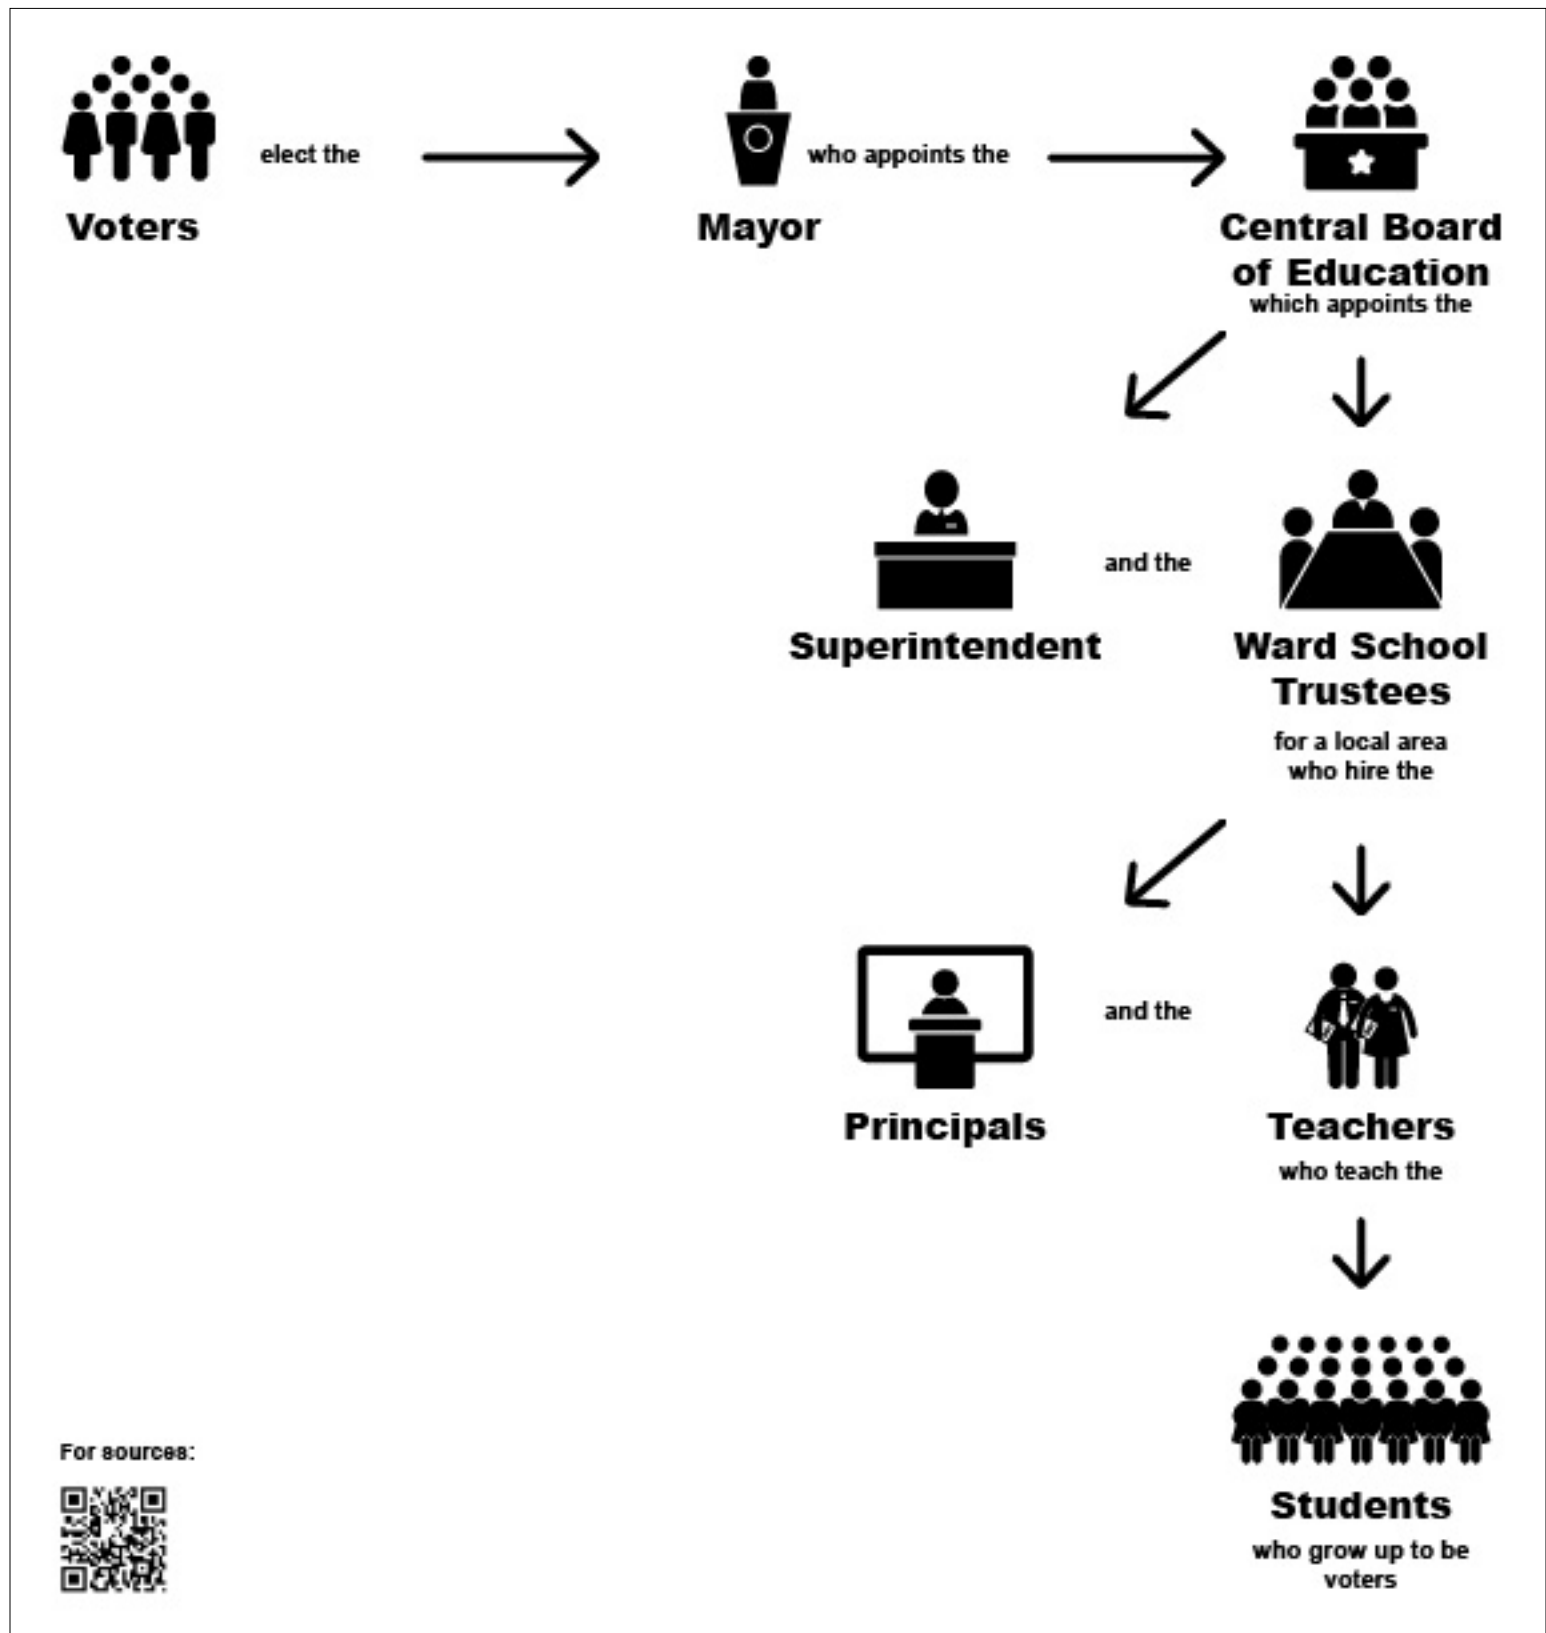

Local governance 1842-1873*

*Except for 1869-1871, when the board was briefly removed and then replaced by mayoral control.

 Each of the present-day boroughs of NYC (Manhattan Brooklyn, Queens, the Bronx, and Staten Island) were at this time separate municipalities, each with their own school system. This visualization is based on the structure in place in Manhattan

Community Control Demonstration Districts 1966-70

* This slide describes the governance structure in 3 community control demonstration districts that were located in East Harlem, Ocean Hill-Brownsville, and the Lower East Side.

 Parents are included here in addition to voters because community members who were not US citizens and thus could not vote in other elections could participate in school board elections.

Decentralized school governance 1970-2002

*Parents who are not citizens can vote in board of education elections only

 Hiring is governed by rules established by the Board of Examiners (until 1990) and by union contracts.

 This mayoral power was added in 1973. Before then, only the presidents appointed Board of Education members. From 1996-2002, this structure remained but the Chancellor hired the District Superintendents.
